

THE STATE OF CARBON MARKETS IN BRAZIL AND LATIN AMERICA

 Friday, 10/08/21  From 2:00 P.M. to 3:30 P.M.

The rapid advance of the global carbon market is not only a necessity, but a potential for Latin America and Brazil. Our region is witnessing an increased interest between sectors and borders transactions, in carbon markets to support viable pathways for zero emissions.

This event will address the actions of important national and international actors in this area that can directly assist investors and regulators in this thematic.

We will also count on partners and their activities, such as the new joint report capturing the current regulated market scenario and voluntary carbon markets in Latin America, which will present an in-depth analysis of developments, trends, and prospects.

The event will address the vision of the private sector and the legal sector, relating the challenges and opportunities of these markets.
